Auxiliary Hears of Work Elsewhere

Members of Y. M. C. A. Auxiliary Learn of What Auxiliaries in Newburgh and Poughkeepsie Are Doing.

The June meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Y. M. C. A. was held on Friday afternoon at the Y's Men's camp at Glenerie with a large delegation from the Auxiliaries of Newburgh and Poughkeepsie as guests. Members of the Kingston Auxiliary and Y's Men's Club furnished cars for transportation to and from the camp. Several auto loads started for the camp between 10 and 11 a. m. Mrs. W. N. Fessenden and her committee, prepared a delicious repast, which was partaken of on the piazza of the Charles Ramsey Lodge.

After lunch a short business meeting was held, Mrs. William Campbell having charge of the devotions and Miss Lucinda Merritt presiding at the piano. The president, Mrs. W. A. Longyear, welcomed the guests and Mrs. Fred Stobler, president of the Newburgh Auxiliary, and Mrs. Maurer former president of the Poughkeepsie Auxiliary, responded with thanks for the entertainment. Mrs. Maurer introduced their newly-elected president, Mrs. Parrott, who gave a few words of greeting. It was voted to give a rising vote of thanks to Mrs. Fessenden and her committee for the bountiful and tasty lunch served.

New Members Received.

Four new members were received into the Auxiliary: Mrs. Harold B. Rich of 59 Harwich street, from the Fair Street Reformed Church; Miss Katherine Burhans of Lake Katrine, from the First Reformed Church; Mrs. Henry Reed of the First Reformed Church and Mrs. Albert Lockwood of 25 Derrenbacher street, from the Church of the Comforter.

Mrs. Hinds reported that 18 members of the Ministerial Association of Kingston had been served with dinners at the camp last week.

Visitors Describe Their Work.

Mrs. McCreedy, secretary of the Newburgh Auxiliary, told about their work. They have 54 members and serve meals to various organizations. The social committee of the Y. M. C. A. gave a party for the Auxiliary members and their husbands, with a movie treat, refreshments and general good time.

Mrs. Maurer told of the work in Poughkeepsie. Money has been raised by silver teas, rummage sales, turkey suppers and bazaars; $1,563.07 was raised this year, $775 of which was donated towards the boy's camp; a gas stove was purchased for their room at the "Y" and cot beds and a potato peeler for their camp. They have 190 members, 13 of which are sustaining members who pay dues of $5 a year and are not asked for any further contributions or service.

Entertainment Follows Business.

At the close of the business meeting Miss Lucinda Merritt entertained with two delightful readings: "Neighbors" and "Wet Weather Talk," by James Whitcomb Reiley.

All enjoyed exploring the extensive grounds of the camp and fellowship with one another. The weather was perfect and all agreed that the spot was most beautiful with great possibilities for service to the Y. M. C. A. and community. The next meeting of the Kingston Auxiliary will be held the second Friday in September.

Several Cases In Police Court

Willard Joy, 35, of No. 1 Second avenue, was arrested Sunday by Officer Fatum who charged Joy with driving an automobile while intoxicated. In police court today the hearing was adjourned to June 19.

Peter Peters of New York city, arrested for driving a truck past the traffic signal set against him on North Front street, forfeited $25 cash bail by failure to appear in court today.

John A. Muhl, Jr., of Syracuse, arrested for driving to the left of a traffic standard, gave $10 cash bail for his appearance on June 16.

The case against Otis Davis, arrested last week on complaint of Harry Caddy, charging Davis with assault in the third degree, was settled by Caddy withdrawing the complaint and Davis promising to leave Caddy alone in the future. Both are employed by the board of public works.

John Patterson, a negro, who said his home was in Louisville, Kentucky, was arrested for panhandling on Broadway this morning. He was sentenced to five days in jail.

SOCIAL WORKER RECEIVES HER MASTER'S DEGREE

Miss Barbara Baum left for Washington, D. C., to receive her Master of Arts regree from the Catholic University of America. Miss Baum is the local Catholic Charities Agent from Central Office of Catholic Charities, New York city. She came east to study social welfare work in Washington after receiving her Bachelor of Science degree from Iowa State College, Ames, Iowa. The thesis required for this Master's Degree dealing with social problems in Ulster county is now bound in book form and placed in the library of the University, Washington, D. C., the School of Social Service, Washington, D. C., and Central Office of Catholic Charities, New York city.

Legion to Open Drive This Week

All members of Kingston Post are requested to meet at the American Legion Memorial Building on Tuesday and Wednesday nights of this week at 7 o'clock. Groups of four men each will be asked to call on five World War veterans and invite them to join the American Legion. Lester Barth, chairman of the membership committee, asks that a large delegation be on hand. Members owning cars are asked to bring their cars for transportation.

Kingston Post now has 661 paid-up members. Only 39 more are required to reach the goal set at the beginning of the year.

With these 39 additional members it is expected that Ulster county will win the state commander's cup and also the honor of leading the American Legion convention parade in Schenectady on September 7. A large contingent of Ulster county Legionnaires will go to Schenectady in busses for this parade, in which 15,000 Legionnaires from all over the state of New York will parade. The Ulster county delegation will be led by the Kingston Post Drum Corps.

Ulster county now stands second on the list of counties in New York state in Legion membership gains over the quota fixed by state headquarters. Putnam county, with a smaller total membership than Ulster, stands first, with but a slight percentage gain over Ulster.

The local ex-soldiers, sailors and marines are sure that Ulster county will gather in enough new members by July 1, to bring Ulster in on the top of the heap.

Another possibility is this: If Ulster leads the state of New York, and New York beats Pennsylvania and Illinois in the National Membership Contest, Ulster county may lead the National Convention parade in San Antonio, Tex., next October. This will give the Kingston Post Drum Corps the honor of leading the parade.

Saturday to Be Gala I.O.O.F. Day

Saturday, June 16, the Independent Order of Odd Fellows' of Ulster county will hold a picnic at Forsyth Park which promises to be a very gala event, according to the program arranged. It is expected that one of largest gatherings of Odd Fellows and Rebekahs, who have been invited to attend the picnic, that ever assembled in Kingston will unite for the day's fun.

The activities of the day will start with a parade from Mechanics' Hall, to Forsyth Park. The line will be made up of Odd Fellows and Rebekahs led by the Mechanics' Band. When the park is reached a concert will be played by the band. Alfred Watson, Grand Master, of Yonkers, will be the principal speaker. Short talks will also be given by other members of the lodges.

Before the general get-to-gether, the lodges of Rebekahs having the largest number of members present will be awarded a large silver cup. It is a beautiful treasure and no doubt will inspire many to be present in order that their lodge may get the trophy. At the social time, games will be included as a feature of the fun. Refreshments will be served.

Friends of the Odd Fellows and Rebekahs of Ulster county are invited to attend the picnic. A good time is promised to all.

It has a frontage of 152 feet on Broadway and a frontage of 152 feet on Cedar street. The property runs from the Broadway Theatre to the corner and thence to the rear of the theatre property on Cedar street. Mr. Dutto states that the property will be greatly improved as he purchased as a business investment. He is connected with the L. & S. They were arraigned before Justice of the Peace Jennings Sunday at the town of Ulster and bail was fixed at $1,500 each for a hearing before U. S. Commissioner Arthur C. Connelly Thursday at 10 o'clock. Both were taken to the county jail and Sottile was later released when he provided the bail.

Italia's Crew Conserves Radio

Only Short Reports Are Being Received from Marooned Airship—Radio Is Crew's Last Link With Civilization.

Kings Bay, Spitzbergen, June 11 (AP).—General Umberto Nobile and the members of the crew of the Italia marooned on the Arctic ice floes today were believed to be conserving the last link that bound them to civilization—their radio.

On the base ship Citta di Milano, radio operators stuck to their posts day and night straining to catch the signals from the explorers. At 10 p. m. last night the Italia's radio was growing weaker. Only short reports were being received by the base ship. It was thought that the marooned men were hoarding the energy of the accumulator. It was believed this would be sufficient for only a few days more.

Since Friday the airship's crew has drifted four minutes from 24 degrees east longitude to 24 degrees four minutes, a distance of 2,000 meters (2,187 yards).

One party on the ice floes has the radio equipment. The other has no means of communication with the base ship. It was feared that their situation was critical.

Southern Cross to Circle the Globe

Sydney, Australia, June 11 (AP).—A desire to continue around the world today gripped the two Australian pilots of the monophane Southern Cross as they rested with their two American companions after their flight from Oakland, Cal.

However, the ship that proved so airworthy on the treacherous 7,800 mile course will not remain idle pending formulation of the world flight plans, as the crew will take off Wednesday for a 600 mile trip to Melbourne.

Captain Charles Kingsford-Smith and Charles Ulm, the Australian pilots, announced this today after they made known their hopes for a world tour.

With the praise of Australians at Brisbane and Sydney still fresh in their memories, the Americans, Harry W. Lyon, navigator, and James W. Warner, radio operator, also were to gain their share of the honors in the southern city. Lyon expects to fly back to Sydney on Thursday and sail for the United States. Warner has not made known exactly what he plans to do after arriving at Melbourne.

Captain Kingsford-Smith announced that he and Ulm in flying the Southern Cross around the world would start from Sydney in a few days.

It is understood the fliers will use the $25,000 given them by the government in carrying out their world flight.

Mexican Starts on Good Will Flight

Mexico City, June 11 (AP).—Captain Emilio Carranza, known as Mexico's Lindbergh, hopped off from the Valbuena flying field for Washington at 8:10 a. m. today to return Colonel Lindbergh's good will flight of several months ago.

The plane, the "Mexico-Excelsior," was built in San Diego by the builders of the famous "Spirit of St. Louis" and was flown by Carranza from San Diego City last month.

Carranza wanted to hop off within a day or two for Washington, but it was necessary to postpone the hop until a special runway could be built, since Mexico City's high altitude made a take off with the heavy gasoline supply necessary difficult.

Ocean Storms Hold Columbia

Curtiss Field, N. Y., June 11 (AP).—Charles A. Levine, owner of the monoplane Columbia, in which Mabel Boll plans to fly to Europe, announced today that plans for a takeoff this morning had been cancelled because of reports indicating unfavorable weather over the Atlantic.

Levine said that weather reports he had received from steamers at sea indicated there was a storm along the course mapped out for the plane. He disclosed that it had been the intention of Miss Boll and the two men who are to accompany her on the flight to head directly for Europe.

DENY STEWART'S MOTION FOR DIRECT VERDICT

Washington, June 11 (AP).—The motion of defense attorneys for a directed verdict of not guilty in the trial of Robert W. Stewart, charged with a misdemeanor for refusing to answer questions put by a senate committee, was denied today by Justice Siddons in the District of Columbia supreme court.

The jury was excused until tomorrow morning when Frank Hogan, chief of defense counsel, and Leo A. Rover, district attorney, said they would require the balance of the day for argument on motions for instruction.

City Plans for Biggest Parade In Its History

Over One Hundred Fire Companies Expected in the Parade of the Firemen's Convention on June 21—Convention Notes.

The Kingston fire department is planning for the biggest firemen's parade in its history on Thursday afternoon, June 21, when over one hundred fire companies will take part. So far at least 85 out of town fire companies have notified the local committee that they will be present the day of the parade.

Tuesday evening the general committee will meet to complete plans for the convention, and it is expected that all friction now existing will be ironed out and that the big parade will be held as planned.

Next Monday evening the officers and directors of the Hudson Valley Volunteer Firemen's Association will be entertained at a dinner at the Hotel Stuyvesant.

Next Tuesday afternoon at the convention all of the past presidents, who number twenty-one, will be presented with gold badges and that evening they will be entertained at a testimonial dinner at the Hotel Stuyvesant. This dinner will also be attended by the vice-presidents of the various counties in the association.

Fog and Rain Hold The Friendship

Trepassey, N. F., June 11 (AP).—A thick fog and heavy rain seemed today to forestall the possibility that the monoplane Friendship could take off for Europe.

And three weather bound members of the crew were plainly disappointed. Fine conditions yesterday had buoyed their hope that they might be able to break the jinx which has held them here a full week after their initial flight from Boston.

Toward dusk, however, the wind shifted to the southwest and with it came a heavy fog which soon was followed by a drenching rain.

Miss Amelia Earhart, Boston aviatrix and social worker, who hopes to be the first woman to cross the Atlantic, and her companions, Wilmer Stultz, pilot, and Louis Gordon, mechanic, had planned to hop off at dawn.

Conditions here changed little during the forenoon but the fliers were hopeful of improvement later in the day, as reports from St. John's and other points showed somewhat better weather.

Murphy assisted in fighting the fire and Wednesday evening the fire chief, members of the paid fire department, the board of fire commissioners and others will motor to Catskill to take part in the presentation. A big parade will be one of the features of the evening. The presentation of the cups will take place in the Catskill armory.

Fish Booms Borah For President

Kansas City, June 11 (AP).—Hamilton Fish, of New York, immediately began to lay the groundwork for a Borah-for-President boom on his arrival last night. He expects to lay his plans before Senator Borah today, and if Borah agrees he will start the ball rolling.

"The trouble with delegates opposed to Hoover is that they have no stopper for the Commerce Secretary," declared Fish, who is here as an alternate. "I believe that Coolidge is out of the race. I also believe that Hughes is out of it and I believe that Borah can unite the opposition factions and win in the election."

Fish believes that Borah is one of the few men who could carry New York over Governor Smith.

"Borah would get both wet and dry votes as his stand on foreign affairs and other public questions would weld the great masses," Fish added. "He would make a popular candidate and would roll up votes from the west to the east."

A poll of the New York delegation on the train, Fish said, gave Coolidge as the first choice for president with 30 votes, Hughes second with 22 votes, and Hoover third with 10 votes. On the vice presidential poll, he said, he himself led the list, with Charles D. Hilles second and Senator Curtis third.

Borah Opposes Naming Coolidge

Kansas City, June 11 (AP).—For the Republican national convention to force the nomination of President Coolidge "would be highly dangerous", Senator William E. Borah of Idaho today told his state delegation at his first conference with them.

"We should then be in a position of selecting a candidate who would withdraw, leaving the party to make a campaign with a second choice," Borah said. "As for President Coolidge, I am confident he will not run and am inclined to believe he will ask that no further votes be cast for him if any are cast on the first ballot.

"As I see it there are only two men in this race. One is probably in it without his consent—President Coolidge. The other is Secretary Hoover."

The Senator let it be known he was willing to have the Idaho votes go to Hoover on an early ballot, even on the first, if it should appear desirable to insure Idaho a place in Hoover councils by this method. No definite vote was taken by the delegation on this question and further conferences will be held.

Two Arrested After Auto Crash

Sunday morning about 1 o'clock there was an automobile crash at St. Remy near the post office on a turn in the highway. William A. Hill of Jersey City, driving a Studebaker sedan, was traveling south and George P. Bilhiewick of Albany, who is employed in Kingston, driving a Chevrolet car, was comig toward Kingston. Both cars were damaged in the crash and each driver blamed the accident on the other fellow. The sheriff's office was notified and when officers responded each man demanded the other be arrested. Both men were placed under arrest and turned over to Deputy Sheriff Constable who later arraigned the men before Justice of the Peace Henry E. McKenzie at Port Ewen. An adjournment was taken until 10 o'clock Monday and bail was fixed at $25. The roadway was blocked by the accident and the sheriff's men found it necessary to clear the road and start traffic moving.

City Clerk Had Narrow Escape

George W. Moore Struck by Auto on Broadway on Saturday and is Confined to Home With Badly Injured Ankle.

City Clerk George W. Moore had a narrow escape from serious injury when struck by an automobile on Broadway on Saturday afternoon, and is confined to his home with a badly injured ankle. Mr. Moore had driven from his office in the Municipal Building on East O'Reilly street up Broadway and had parked his car on Broadway opposite the drug store of Maben & Walker, and started to walk across the street to the drug store.

There was a trolley car standing on the switch and Mr. Moore walked in front of it. As he did so a car driven by F. K. Williams of Brooklyn suddenly appeared in front of him. Mr. Moore leaped into the air to avoid being struck and landed on the bumper of the automobile, which was quickly brought to a stop.

Mr. Moore was able to drive his car home but had only been in the house a short time when his ankle began to pain him severely and he called a physician who found that the ankle was badly injured. Mr. Moore will be confined to his home, 55 Smith avenue, for the remainder of the week.

Boyology Course At K. of C. Hall

The Boyology Course will be continued this evening beginning at 8 o'clock at the Knights of Columbus building. The course which is free has attracted large attendances and record crowds are expected at the final sessions. Joseph D. Becker, national field secretary of the Boys' Life Bureau of the Knights of Columbus Supreme Council, Boys' Life Bureau, who is conducting the course, issues an invitation to all men of the city regardless of their affiliations to attend closing sessions this week.

Saturday evening the smallest attendance of the course, which was due to the many men engaged in business being unable to attend, was reported. Despite the small gathering those who attended were well repaid. One of the features of the evening was the song contest which was won by the Mongoose tribe. Singing by the various "gang" quarters and camps completed a program that was very pleasing.

New York Would Draft Coolidge

Movement Gains Impetus Among Delegates to National Convention—Wadsworth Explains Why He Opposes Hoover—Ottinger Favored for Gubernatorial Nomination.

By Russell Hathaway.
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

Kansas City, June 11 (AP).—With all the New York delegates to the Republican National Convention on the ground today, the strength of the "Draft Coolidge" movement gained impetus in the delegation.

Although a few of the leaders had been in the convention city for several days, the great body of the delegates and convention onlookers from the Empire State arrived last night on a special train running in three sections.

A check of the delegates indicated that the regular organization group comprising a comfortable majority would follow the leadership of National Committeeman Charles D. Hilles, State Chairman George K. Morris and former Senator James W. Wadsworth in voting for the renomination of President Coolidge unless word should be received from the White House that the president was definitely out of the picture.

No Personal Objection to Hoover.

"I am not voting for Hoover," Senator Wadsworth said. "This is not because I have any personal objection to him, but because I do not believe that he can carry the state of New York against Al Smith. In this I am with Mr. Hilles and the organization."

Senator Wadsworth said if the president refused to be a candidate for renomination the votes of the delegates opposed to Hoover would probably be divided among Governor Lowden, Vice-President Dawes and others.

Mills Predicts Hoover's Nomination.

Under Secretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills, who arrived here in his special car yesterday, accompanied by Representative Bertrand H. Snell of Potsdam, predicted that Hoover would be nominated on the first ballot and that the convention would adjourn by Thursday evening.

"I am as certain of Hoover's nomination," he said, "as I have ever been certain of anything."

First Test in Committee.

It was considered probable that the first test of strength between the Hoover and anti-Hoover elements would come this afternoon, when the delegation meets in caucus to organize, elect a chairman and its representatives on the various convention committees.

Mr. Mills aspires to membership on the committee on resolutions which will consider, among other things, a plank approved by Senator Borah of Idaho and Secretary Hoover and sent to Chairman Reed Smoot of the resolutions committee, calling for a strict enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment.

Say State Opposes Prohibition.

It was recalled also that Mr. Hoover in replying to a recent questionnaire of Senator Borah had declared in favor of "this great social experiment" of prohibition. Anti-Hoover members of the New York delegation headed by Mr. Wadsworth took the position that sentiment generally throughout the state is opposed to prohibition and that the state's representative on the resolutions committee should not be one who was allied with a candidate who had declared so forcibly for prohibition as had Mr. Hoover.

The penalty, in the opinion of Mr. Wadsworth, would be the alienation of the votes of many New York Republicans who hope for the eventual repeal of the dry law.

"Will it please the radical?" he was asked.

"You know what my attitude toward prohibition has been," he answered. "This plank is accepted cheerfully by me and there is a great difference between mere acceptance and cheerful acceptance."

Ottinger Shows Strength for Governor.

On the trip to Kansas City the delegates and other party workers on board the New York special trains gave considerable attention to the gubernatorial situation. Although no poll was taken, the candidacy of Attorney General Albert Ottinger received substantial endorsement.

Many upstate county Republican organizations, including that in Erie county, have been working in Mr. Ottinger's behalf for several weeks. Mr. Ottinger had engaged passage on the special train, but missed it. He boarded the first regular train after the special had departed, and arrived here a few hours ahead of the first section.

Dog Licenses Ready.

On Tuesday evening, June 12, at 5:30 o'clock the Men's Loyalty Dinner will be held in the lecture room of the Reformed Church. To friends and members of the congregation the women of the church will serve dinner free. On Wednesday evening, June 13, at 5:30 the Women's Loyalty Dinner will be served by the men free and will relieve the women of all responsibility and labor. Dr. Alexander Mitchell, director of the special program will be the speaker at both dinners.

The Children's Day Juvenile Pageant, "Crown Jewels" held in the Methodist Episcopal Church House Sunday morning was one of the best exercises ever held. The children took their parts in a very able manner especially Miss Lillian Lapine, who took the part of Joy. The singing by the girls was also fine. The drill given by the junior boys was good; in fact everyone should have special mention. Great credit is due Mrs. W. C. Mabie and her efficient helpers for the way the pageant was rendered. The stage was trimmed very appropriately with cut flowers.

R. H. Mostea, a graduate of International Correspondence Schools of Scranton, Pa., has moved into the house of Mrs. Kohan on Main street and is prepared to give instruction along those lines.

Man's Inner Quality His Real Character

A man is not born with some special "sense" of honesty or any special "moral sense" whatsoever. His skills of behavior are all learned. A man may, therefore, be honest, not from any fine sensitiveness to human values, but because he has learned that it is the best policy. But he has not learned even this policy with reference to the whole round of human associations. He has learned merely a certain set of "safety first" habits with reference to particular situations. And, even if we could add up all these ways of behaving, one by one, they would not make the thing we call character. "A man may possess all the virtues and not be virtuous;" he may act virtuously, and act honestly, and yet be a scoundrel, is the assertion made by Albert E. Wiggam, writing in the World's Work.

For it is not the act in itself that distinguishes the good man from the bad, but the inner quality of the man himself as an organized and socially functioning individual. We may add up his charateristics, whether these be virtues or vices, but the algebraical sum is not his character. Character does not consist merely in any set of acts; it involves, also, the inner attitude of the man toward his acts and towards others whom he expects his acts will help or harm.

Right Sorrow

What do you allow yourself to grieve over? Do you indulge yourself in sorrow over what cannot be helped? Are you saddened more by a harsh word from another than by a harsh word you yourself utter? Much success and happiness depend on being sorry for the right things.—Exchange.

THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK, BY THE GRACE OF GOD, FREE AND INDEPENDENT,

TO—

Mervin J. Burkie, residence unknown.

YOU are hereby cited to show cause, at a Surrogate's Court to be held in and for the County of Ulster at the Surrogate's office in the City of Kingston, in said County, on the 16th day of July next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day, why the last Will and Testament of Henry A. Haines, late of the City of Kingston, Ulster County, deceased, presented to said Surrogate's Court, should not be admitted to probate and recorded as a Will of real and personal estate, in pursuance of the statute, on the petition of George A. Webster of the City of Kingston, the Executor named therein.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, We have caused the seal of said Surrogate's Court to be hereunto affixed. Witness Hon. GEORGE F. KAUFMAN, Surrogate of our said County, at the City of Kingston, the 8th day of June, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and twenty-eight.

Unfurred Coat Is Youthful, Simple

Pronounced Chic in Sleader Lines Accentuated by New Details.

The unfurred coat that is worn for sports and general walking and shopping shows a youthful simplicity of both line and detail. The coat, in general, for the young girl has been greatly simplified, being seen mostly in tailored lines. Sports coats and those for general service being fashioned of tweeds and plain goods of the kasha family as well as the new and novel woolens richly colored and figured.

The straight little coats of full or three-quarter length are the favored models. Collars are generally of self material but sometimes introduce a contrast in colors and show a tailored revers. The line of the back is generally straight and unbroken. The fitted shoulder, the sleeve which forms a part of the yoke, and the yoke back, however, are new and interesting details. The scarf collar is a novel feature of many of the unfurred coats. This, however, is added in a manner that in no way deprives the coat of its tailored appearance.

Belts reappear in the daytime coat and they are seen at the normal waistline. In many models the belt is the outstanding feature of the smart tweed coat for walking, sports or traveling. Belts may be in self material buckled in leather, kid or metal, or they may be in the very smart versions of kid in either wide or narrow widths.

The sleeves often denote the newness of the coat. Yola d'Arvil, the featured moving picture actress, seen wearing a very new and very charming version of the sports coat in "Lady Be Good," has selected a tweed coat of simple outline, the sleeves of which possess novel treatment.

Vast Difference Between Underwear and Lingerie

"The difference between underwear and lingerie is just about as wide as that stretch of the Atlantic ocean which lies between the coast of Maine and the shores of France," observes a fashion writer in the Delineator.

"Woven union suits," she says, "machine-made chemises of nainsook, brassieres of 'hamburg' embroidery, bloomers with elastic bands around the knee—this is underwear. A chemise of pale-pink crepe de chine with trimmings of lace and delicate embroidery, a little pantaloon to match, with fine tuckings and insertions and applique, all made by hand and to measure, fitting the figure as perfectly as a frock—this is lingerie. Never, in all the history of feminine fashion, has lingerie been so exquisite as at the present moment," continues this writer. "There was a time when blue and pale green and mauve were used as well as pink for these dainty garments, but these colors have all been discarded for the delicate blush pink which is the daintiest and most becoming of them all. Incidentally, it is the most serviceable color as well."

Flavor of Quaintness Marks Afternoon Gowns

Many of the afternoon gowns have a flavor of quaintness, and the period of 1830-40 is shown in both frocks and ensembles. A charming gown in dark red flowered taffeta, for instance, has a straight bodice, high plain belt, and three-tiered plaited skirt. Its sleeves are puffed at the elbow and there is an amusing bow at the neck with long black fringe.

Another lovely model is a black satin frock with the same silhouette as the evening gowns. It follows closely the lines of the body with a decided flare below the knees, and drops in the back. An interesting detail is the scarf, which fastens on one side with a circular movement over one shoulder and can be draped about the throat with a long-pointed end hanging over the opposite shoulder.

The New Blouse Is Usually Collared, Frequently Fagoted, Often Tucked, and Occasionally Without Sleeves.

New York.—The blouse returns to favor, not only on its own merits, but because the favor accorded the tailored suit naturally drags it into the limelight. While the blouse is rivaled by the sweater, there are occasions for which women require something a little less informal.

One of the most important developments is the reappearance of the collared blouse, not the high-collared one necessarily, but a blouse that has some decorative addition about the neckline, which, by the way, is variously shaped. The younger element are insistent on the collared blouse, and wear the collar over that of the jacket.

White prints are used for blouses, the preference runs to egg shell, beige, and white, in the order named. The overblouse, longer in some instances, is consistent with the accepted dress silhouette, in that it has a snugly fitted hip-line.

Jabot and handkerchief-drape scarfs, belts, and a disposition to tucks, pleats and fagoting are among the most impressive details in collections that include imports as well as smart domestic models.

There is a growing interest in sleeveless jackets for sports wear, which, of course, makes harmony between jacket and blouse a vital thing. There is, too, some element of interest in the sleeveless blouse. It is manifested in tub models, such as linen, pique, and the like. There are also many worthy hand fagoted crepe de chines, especially desirable for sultry days in the country.

SOME FAULTS we might forgive at times—but perspiration odor—never! A person who offends is simply "out"—socially as well as otherwise.

Coolidge to Get Convention News

Train On Which He Travels on Way to Wisconsin Equipped With Radio—Will Also Receive Telegrams En Route.

Washington, June 11 (AP).—Losing no time in leaving the capital after his last speaking engagement here this evening, President Coolidge will leave Washington tonight for Brule, Wisconsin, to spend the summer.

Accompanied by Mrs. Coolidge and one of the largest clerical and servant staffs that ever moved to a summer White House, Mr. Coolidge expects to reach Cedar Island Lodge on the Brule river about 28 miles from Superior, on Wednesday morning. He is not expected to return to Washington until the middle of September.

President Coolidge will reach his summer home before the Kansas City Convention is likely to settle down to actual balloting for the selection of a Republican candidate in the November election.

Although his residence will be in the wild section of Wisconsin and at a distance from a population center, Mr. Coolidge will have ample facilities to keep in constant touch with the convention developments. In addition to a radio, the chief executive will have special telephone and telegraph lines at his disposal.

In this respect Mr. Coolidge will be on exactly the same footing as if he were in Washington.

A radio set has been installed on the railroad car put at Mr. Coolidge's disposal for the trip. By this means, in addition to telegrams delivered on the way, the president will be able to follow events preceding his arrival at Superior.

Household accessories, personal effects and office files will be the only luggage taken. Four favorites among the White House dogs will accompany the Coolidges.

Boy Scouts' Minstrel Tonight

The Boy Scouts of St. Mary's Parish will present a minstrel show in the school hall tonight at 8:15 o'clock, which promises to be witnessed by a large and well pleased audience. The Scouts, who made a big hit at a dress rehearsal Sunday, will stage the performance again on Tuesday evening. There will be dancing after the show tonight and Tuesday.

The Scouts were coached by David L. Long. He has the boys performing in the usual professional style, which has put many a show across for him as a big hit. The Rev. William H. Kennedy, director of the troop, is much pleased with the boys and feels sure that all who visit the hall tonight and Tuesday will also be pleased.

Demands Troops Be Withdrawn

Shanghai, June 11 (AP).—The Nanking government council, the Nanking government official news agency announces, has drawn up a manifesto addressed to the powers having treaties with China which states:

"Foreign troops must be withdrawn from China immediately."

"The presence of foreign troops is causing mutual suspicion. The practice of the powers in sending forces to whatever part of Chinese territory the Nationalists happen to reside, will compel the Nationalists to exclude foreigners from the interior of China."

The manifesto declares that the reconstruction phase of the revolution has arrived, but that it cannot be effectively carried out because of restrictions imposed on China by treaties. Therefore the Nationalists hope that the powers will agree to immediately treaty revision.

KINGSTON, N. Y., JUNE 11, 1928.

On the eighth day out from Oakland, the Southern Cross landed at Brisbane, Australia. Through winds, storms, fogs and rains, the plane came safely with its flyers. "What man has done, man can do" says the proverb. But if it be a big job that man has done but once or seldom, it calls for the same straight thinking, the same good tools, the same courage, humor and persistence.

Gilbert Smith, a 13-year-old youngster of Somerville, N. J., wrote to ask Chief Justice Taft what country would have jurisdiction in case the French Ambassador at Washington should be murdered by the British Ambassador. The foreign embassies being technically foreign territory, Gilbert's brain puzzled over the question in vain, and then was humiliated by a letter from Mr. Taft merely recommending that he be industrious in getting his lessons.

SWAPPING JOBS.

By a curious quirk in elections, William G. Lee, president of the Railroad Trainmen, and A. F. Whitney, general secretary-treasurer, will swap jobs on July 1. The vote was close, but finally resulted in Whitney for president. Then Lee was voted in to succeed Whitney.

It came a little hard on Lee, who had served as president for 19 years, but like the good soldier he is, he intends to carry on in the new job, and to "keep a parental eye on the brotherhood". The hope that he would do so was doubtless one of the aims the men had in view in keeping him in office, though with a younger man at the helm. After all, 19 years is a long period of service in a changing world.

Lee will be remembered best by the general public for his refusal, in 1924, to make any effort to line up the brotherhood's presidential votes. "The trainmen can think for themselves," he said. And they did.

EUROPE EATS.

Europe may be poor, but it is eating our export foods to the extent of $1,250,000,000 a year and more. There is an ever increasing demand for what a writer in the Country Gentleman calls "semi-luxuries." Europe eats more and more of our fruits, fresh, dried and canned; vegetables likewise. Appetite is growing for our raisins, prunes, fresh apples, even grapefruit. It's good for us to export these things; it is better for Europe to eat them. Some of the malnourished look will disappear from pinched faces as fruits clear the skin, as raisins give color, as corn, peas and beans give weight.

It takes time to get over a war, time to get people to liking strange foods. But it's a benefic circle. People who get a variety of fresh foods want more; they work harder to get more; as they get more they are able to do better work; then they are able to earn more; the whole standard of living goes up. This is a slow process, but keeps moving.

People who can earn more, as Henry Ford is so fond of telling us, can buy more from us. Who can foresee what our raisins and canned grapefruit will yet do for the automobile and airplane market?

NEW MELONS.

Gardeners have been making experiments with melons of late years, with the result of having a number of new varieties ready for market this year. The honey-dew and the honey-ball are already familiar. The honey-dew has now been crossed with the tiptop cantaloupe, the new melon being yellow with a different and interesting flavor. The honey-dew and casaba have also been crossed with the "honeydair" as their child. The Persian and Turkish melons are really overgrown muskmelons, but differing somewhat from their forebears and becoming quite popular already.

When people talk of the higher cost of living in these last years, they often forget the difference in standards. Fresh fruit once were attainable only by the rich, except for a short summer period, and even for the rich the season was only slightly lengthened. Nowadays fruits of some kind find their way to the lowliest homes, summer and winter alike. Apples run through the whole year, as do oranges and bananas. The strawberry and tomato seasons are constantly growing longer. The new melons will soon drop out of the luxury class into everyday foods for many months of the year.

The better health, strength and stature of the new generation bears witness to the value of the wider distribution of fresh foods.

HOW GALL STONES ARE FORMED.

When we remember that more than one in every twenty who have reached the age of forty, have some stones in the gall bladder we should certainly be thankful that so many escape any serious consequences therefrom.

An attack of gallstone colic, or just the sight of someone suffering an attack, is something that can never be forgotten.

As the stone, small or large, attempts to force its way out into the small duct leading from the gall bladder it stretches and cuts the delicate lining of the tube, hence the terrific pain.

Now it has been noticed that gall stones are not as frequent in poor neighborhoods as in those where live the wealthy.

Men and women who work hard physically, who use their bodies in all sorts of bending positions, the women who do their own housework, unhampered by high corsets, do not make up the majority of those who enter hospitals for removal of gall stones.

Why?

Because one of the outstanding causes of gall stones is inactivity of the body. Youngsters do not have gall stones, nor do young folks up to thirty years of age; at least they are rarely found at this age.

It is only as folks get older and less active that trouble starts, because it has been found that in the majority of gall stones one of the substances found in the bile itself really helps to form the stone. If gall bladder and liver are squeezed frequently as they are by all kinds of bending exercises, or by any exercise that makes the lungs breathe deeply thus pushing floor of chest against liver and gall bladder, this substance in the bile doesn't get the same chance to "thicken."

Further it has been definitely proven that too much food, food too rich in fats will likewise tend to cause this substance in the bile—cholesterol—to wrap itself around little bundles of clumps of the lining cells of the gall bladder, and thus form a stone.

Now if at least one in every twenty individuals who have reached forty have gall stones, there is always the possibility of increasing the number and size of these stones by eating food too rich in fats.

And the lesson is plain for all of us.

Activity of the body, and plain food will prevent gall stones. If stones are already formed, careful eating and sane exercise may prevent colic or the need of an operation.

Georges Barrere Tells His Story

Famous Flutist Has Written an Autobiography—Maverick Folks and Music Lovers Will Enjoy "Barrere" Booklet.

(By F. O. Flourh.)

Georges Barrere has written an autobiography; he is of course known to radio fans and Maverick audiences as a flutist; those who have seen this veteran virtuoso on the concert stage will want to read his story. As a man he is handsome; his gray-black beard gives him a distinguished appearance; his wit and humour of tongue, his winning personality, make him a first-rate stage performer; his flute playing puts him in the rank of musicians as one of the leading flutists in America today.

In presenting his autobiography at this time Mr. Barrere engages his readers from the outset with an original and witty monologue. The booklet titled "Barrere" is prefaced with the usual photograph of an unusual man.

Georges Barrere was born in France, went to Paris at the early age of three years, came to America in 1905 after winning himself a place in Europe as a flutist of talent. His reception in America wasn't wonderful; he worked, struggled, and played his flute. His "Barrere Ensemble" was a success in 1912. Later came the Barrere Little Symphony, by which the flutist is best known today for his work over the air, and on the concert platform.

As a writer, Mr. Barrere touches high spots in the telling of the death of his mother in 1899, and in writing of his leave-taking of his native land in 1905; he proves himself a genuine American in his finishing paragraphs.

His autobiography is augmented by a tribute from Walter Damrosch's "My Musical Life", and by an article written by Dr. Frank Crane, both reprinted in Barrere's booklet, now new from printing presses and being ordered by his many friends from The News Shop, Woodstock.

The writer modestly begs permission to repeat what he wrote one year ago when Mr. Barrere came out with a golden flute in lieu of his former silver flute. The item was written in one of the first issues of the Saugerties Evening Star:

"Maverick folk will have a surprise in store for them when they hear Mr. Barrere again....some will recall the magic notes that flowed from his 'silver' flute, notes like drops of water, notes like crystals; music like liquid, or again swift like lightning, and always as perfect as man could make it."

After reading the biographical account, one learns that the success of the flutist was one come from hard work, from long years of practice, and study. One also enjoys the modest, engaging story by this musician who has given his life to his art; it is interspersed with humorous tales of his experiences. The booklet will without doubt be of interest to a wide circle of readers.

For Meditation

By LEONARD A. BARRETT

HOME OWNERSHIP

IN 1920 forty-five people out of every hundred owned their own homes. It is estimated that in 1930 one-half of the entire population of our own country will own their homes. Two factors account for this condition. One is the increase in the wage scale, the other is the spirit of thrift. Statistics show that savings accounts never reached so high a figure as at the present time. The American Bankers' association in a recent report said: "Equal distribution of the nation's savings would give each person in the United States $220." These savings were increased in 1927 over 1926 by more than a billion dollars. Much of the credit for this healthy state of affairs is attributable to the banks and loan companies who in ways encourage the habit of thrift.

A dollar at 6 per cent interest, compounded annually, will double itself in about sixteen years. Saved money has real earning power. It works while you sleep. The satisfaction and pleasure derived from saving is even greater than that derived from spending money.

There is an important difference between necessities and luxuries. This distinction is often forgotten. Luxuries are the things we want but can do without and they demand about three times as much money as do the necessities. Saving does not mean that the necessities must be discarded but it does mean that less money be spent upon more luxuries.

The price which economy demands is courage and sacrifice, but the reward is worth the cost. More real satisfaction is obtained from saving money than from spending it; especially when with saved funds we purchase an acre and call it HOME.

Weekly Foreign News Review

(By The Associated Press)

Events of great importance in the world news watch were crowded in to-night began to clear up last week. The Nationalists, or southerners in China, paid their visit to the Northerners, taking over the Northern capital, Peking, which Marshal Chang Tso-Lin, Manchurian dictator, and his troops were obliged to abandon.

The missing Italian dirigible, with General Umberto Nobile and 17 other daring explorers, was located by wireless off the north coast of North East Land, about 200 miles from Kings Bay, which Nobile was endeavoring to reach on his return from the North Pole.

Premier Mussolini, of Italy, gave his promised talk to the Italian Senate on foreign relations. He emphasized the good will that Italy had to all others, and, instead of an outburst against Austria and Jugo-Slavia for demonstrations of protest against the Italian flag and consulates, he remarked that he would be inclined to laugh at such actions, except for their grave significance. Nevertheless, Mussolini apparently felt that a mild warning of this nature would be sufficient to restore friendship.

Six thousand Shansi troops, affiliated with the Nationalists, marched into Peking, other divisions closed in the circle which they had gradually been throwing around the Capital. Marshal Chang Tso-Lin was bombed on his way to Mukden, some of those about him were killed. He himself was seriously wounded. There were also reports that he had died from his wounds; there were also reports that he was recovering.

No disturbances had occurred to the end of the week in Peking, which more than once was the scene of destruction by fire and sword. The foreign legations were all well guarded, and those who sought refuge were taken care of. Apparently the ministers of the powers did not expect trouble, but were prepared for it.

A flight of nearly 8,000 miles over the Pacific Ocean brought fame to the two Australians and two Americans. The Australians were the pilots, Captain Kingsford-Smith and Charles Ulm; the Americans were the navigator, Captain Harry W. Lyon, and radio operator, James Warner. From California they flew to Hawaii; from Hawaii to the Fiji Islands, then to Australia.

England's great classic of the turf, the Derby, was run at Epsom Downs, with Felstead the winner, and a million people looking on. The Calcutta Sweekstakes, and other sweeps, which add to the attraction of the Derby, proved of higher value this year than on any other occasion, with $1,310,000 approximately going to the lucky holder of the winning ticket in the Calcutta.

The League Council at Geneva put aside the Polish- Lithuanian controversy over the City of Vilna until its Sept. meeting while Premier Poincare of France still held the Chamber of Deputies in suspense and the business interests at large by his delay in submitting his plans for stabilization of the franc.

"The People's Library"

"The newspaper is the people's library," says Rev. Mickie Brown, founder of the loop church on Lake street, where he has helped many a discouraged man to find a new hope and a new life through the inspiration of a practical religion, says the Chicago Post. "More people can be reached and influenced for good—or otherwise—through the newspaper than through any other agency." He is right. And we have often wondered why those who, with Mr. Brown, believe in the supreme value of religion for men's lives have not recognized this fact and used the newspaper as the merchant employs it to sell his wares. Spasmodically it has been done, but rarely with the same consistency and the same intelligent attention to the psychology of appeal which characterizes the commercial advertiser. There is a worth-while hint in what this minister says. If some of the millions which are spent on building churches and endowing seminaries were to be devoted to advertising religion in the columns of the newspapers with the persistence and skill which marks the advertising of commodities, we venture to say the results would astonish the investors—and there would be more money forthcoming for the churches and seminaries.

Thomas A. Edison has made many contributions to the comfort and security of civilized mankind. At his advanced age he is still striving to be a benefactor. His latest experiment is with a lighting device for miners' caps, intended to increase the safety of miners while working deep in the bowels of the earth. Promoting the safety of miners is a field in which there is yet room for much activity. Mining is still one of the most hazardous of occupations. Accidents in which men employed in mines are injured or killed in large numbers are frequent. Every few days news reports tell of some horror. If Mr. Edison can invent a lamp that will add to the security of these underground workers he will be performing a much needed service in a field more or less neglected.

Little first-graders at school are not too young to be taught to speak clearly, it has been found by speech teachers in San Francisco public schools. Children of the first three grades, who lisp or talk baby talk have heretofore been generally left alone so that they might outgrow the defect naturally, if possible. Children of these ages can be taught to overcome defects in articulation more easily, however, than older children, Miss Edna Cotrel, of the San Francisco public schools, reported to the National Association of Speech Teachers. They respond to the idea of learning to "talk like a big girl, and not like a baby," and throw off bad speech habits more quickly than older classes.

Church in Politics Becomes Useless

Among the twelve new pastors accepted Saturday in the English district of the Lutheran Missouri Synod was the Rev. Carl A. Romoser of St. Paul Church, this city. Two others were appointed in the New York district, the Rev. Claudius S. Kulow was assigned to Redeemer Lutheran Church, St. Albans, L. I., and the Rev. Frank Schwartz to Buffalo. In addressing the conference President Dan of Valparaiso University said:

"The Bible has never made a single errorist or heretic, but disregard of the Bible has made many such. When this church dabbles into politics it resolves itself into a useless organization and it must remain moored to the biblical anchorage of God if it is to continue to hold its position in the world."

"Gasoline Alley" Still Growing

Stony Hollow Gas Vendors Make Motorists Paradise—Blue Pumps Added to Color Scheme—Frankie Has Vantage Point at North.

Motorists driving out from Kingston toward the Ashokan reservoir boulevard pass through what is known as "Gasoline Alley." Now Gasoline Alley is certainly more than a half-mile stretch of highway lined with those modern embodiments of progress, handsome gas stations; it is located in Stony Hollow, just below the fork which separates the southern and northern reservoir boulevards. The chief claim Gasoline Alley has to distinction, with Kingston and visiting autoists is that here no less than eleven gas pumps are bravely calling for trade from passers-by.

While the noted Alley has passed through vociferous price wars, thus far all the gasoline vendors are holding their own elsewhere. But it came back the war waged so strongly that gasoline was dropped at least two cents lower along the Stony Hollow alley than elsewhere. But it came back to normal, and motor car drivers passed through on high without so much as noticing more than an unusual number of lights and blazing, raucous pumps decked in black, white and red colors.

But the present season has new competition along the Gasoline Way. Henry Frankie, formerly a Keystone merchant in the alley has moved to a position at the extreme northern end of the line with a brand new station built on land reclaimed from a swamp. Mr. Frankie has added a new brand of gasoline to the varieties offered, also a new color of pump. His new pumps are a bright blue and add lots to the variegated color scheme. Reports are that he catches the autoists coming south, holding as he does the extreme northern vantage point. His product is Purol, advanced through a Kingston dealer. And while Socony claims the largest number of pumps, Purol promises to put an extra squirt into the tank of competition at Gasoline Alley. Local forecasts are that Stony Hollow will enjoy a boom season for 1928, and that Frankie will share with his neighbors in the task of feeding the tin camels that journey through from the surrounding oasis.

Scotch Flemings

In Newhaven, a little fishing community on the shore of the Firth of Forth, Scotland, there is a colony of fisherfolk who are the descendents of Flemish settlers of the Fifteenth century. The settlers, refugees from the Thirty Years' war waged by Charles V in Flandera, carried with them their native customs and manner of dress, which are still in evidence despite the long sojourn among the Scotch.

Ages Old, but Youthful

One of the remarkable facts about the Grand canyon is that, though probably a million years old, it is considered the valley of a young stream. When rivers get old their valleys are worn flat, like that of the lower Mississippi.

"We've enjoyed the evening so much!"

But what did they say on their way home? Even the most sympathetic of your friends have a way of comparing notes afterwards. The clothes you wore, the furnishings of the room, the food you served—each comes in for its share of the inevitable post-party conversation.

There is a way of keeping informed in those little things that catalogue your degree of smartness. It is through reading the advertisements, those messengers that bring news of the precise purchase to make. Advertisements lay before you the latest notes in dress. They illustrate the newest decorative treatments for the home. They furnish you with unique and tempting recipes for the table.

Substitute Spelling

A second-grade teacher was inspecting letter-card sentences made by her pupils. On one boy's desk she read this sentence: "He took his hat ofph." Very much surprised at the novel spelling, she inquired of the boy how he happened to spell "off" in this way. "Well," was the reply, "I ran out of fs."

Record American Army

The greatest army ever to serve under the American flag was assembled for an attack on September 12, 1918, during the World war, when 400,000 men with 3,000 cannon faced the enemy, supported by an air force of nearly 1,500 airplanes, according to Gen. William Mitchell in Liberty Magazine.

GRADUATION EXERCISES AT LAKE MOHONK SCHOOL

The largest class which has graduated from the Mohonk School held its final exercises on the morning of May 29th in the assembly room of the hotel. As the group that graduates each year grows, it brings a larger number of the patrons together for the event. The headmaster, Jerome Faber Kidder, introduced Daniel Smiley, who has recently returned from a trip around the world. Mr. Smiley in his most cordial way welcomed the patrons to Mohonk and told them how much he felt the school was doing for the boys and how glad he was to have the school there. Mr. Kidder spoke briefly. He congratulated and thanked the outgoing class for its loyalty, its fine school spirit and its leadership. He called the attention of the patrons to the aims of the school—to build strong, rugged health into its students; to teach boys how to study and get results from their own efforts; and to teach them that the measure of a man is his service to his home, his country and to his time. He spoke of the high quality and of the scholarship of the large faculty of the school and of his desire and intention to maintain it for "a stream does not rise above its source." Prizes were awarded this year for excellence in English to Albert Keith Smiley, Jr., of Mohonk Lake, school medal; excellence in mathematics to Horace Dustin Rice of St. Paul, Minn., school medal. Excellence in Romance Languages to John Musser Frame of Reading, Pennsylvania, school medal. Excellence in Latin to Albert Keith Smiley, Jr., of Mohonk Lake, school medal. Five dollars in gold was awarded to Adrian W. Mather of Albany for the neatest boy in school. Ten dollars, first prize, was awarded to Walter Biddle McIlvain, Jr., of East Dowington, Pennsylvania, for keeping the most orderly and clean room. Ten dollars, second prize, was divided between John Stockdale of Scarsdale, New York and Arthur Lundin of Flushing, New York, for orderly and clean double room. The prize of ten dollars for the greatest improvement in academic work was awarded to Robert McHutchinson of Jersey City, New Jersey, and a prize of ten dollars was also awarded to him for the greatest physical and mental growth. The graduating class consisted of William Hall Chambers, New York; Howard Bieber Crane, Mamaroneck, L. I.; Arnold Jackson Green, Providence, Rhode Island; DeWitt C. Kellogg, Westfield, New Jersey; Theodore John Lindley, Jr., Upper Montclair, New Jersey; Lawrence Eric Lundin, Flushing; Albert Keith Smiley, Jr., Mohonk Lake; Spafford John Whitney, Briarcliff N. Y.; John Squires Whitman, Bedford Village, N. Y. Of the above class all but two are planning to enter college in the fall, and the two are going directly into travel and business.

Tagging Major League Bases

By Herbert W. Barker.
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

Eastern skeptics, waiting for the Cincinnati Reds to fall with a thud, are learning rapidly that it is more than luck that keeps Jack Hendricks's crew at the top of the National League standing.

Good pitching, airtight fielding and timely batting will win ball games in any league. And Hendricks is getting all three. And just now he is getting them in more copious quantities than any of his rivals.

Superlative pitching by Jakie May, rotund southpaw of Hendricks's mound staff, gave the Reds a 3 to 0 victory over the New York Giants before 40,000 persons who packed the Polo Grounds to near capacity yesterday. The defeat cost the Giants second place, for it was coupled with Brooklyn's defeat by the St. Louis Cardinals.

May, an in-and-outer, was very much "in" yesterday. He granted five hits, scattered so effectively that not a man reached third base. Dressen's single scored Curt Walker's single with the bases full in the eighth accounted for the last two. Dutch Henry started for the Giants but split a finger trying to bunt in the sixth inning. Ben Cantwell finished up the lost cause.

Del Bissonnette's 11th homer of the year was the only bright spot for Wilbert Robinson in the Dodgers' crushing 15 to 7 defeat by the Cards. Brooklyn remained within hailing distance of victory until the eighth when the Cards unleashed a batting assault that netted seven runs.

The American League program was featured by the ninth defeat of the season of the New York Yankees. The White Sox turned the trick at Chicago, 8 to 6, despite Babe Ruth's 21st and 22nd home runs of the season. Forty-three thousand saw the game.

Kress's single scored McNeely with the run that allowed St. Louis to defeat the Boston Red Sox, 2 to 1, in 12 innings. Sam Gray, Browns' ace, went the route and earned his 10th win in 14 starts. Taitt's homer in the second gave the Red Sox their lone tally.

The Athletics failed to diminish the ten and one-half games that separate them from the Yankees for they were soundly trounced, 9 to 3, by the Detroit Tigers. Old Jack Quinn and Eddie Rommel were pounded for 15 hits by the Tigers, who have shown decided improvement in the last few weeks.

Jamieson's error in the ninth, coupled with singles by Goslin and Judge, enabled Washington to nose out Cleveland, 6 to 5, for the Senators' fourth straight win. After Braxton had been found for five runs in the first three innings, Lisenbee came to the rescue and held the tribe hitless for five innings. With two out he retired so that Fred Marberry could fan Myatt, a pinch hitter, for the final out.

Pan-Ams Downed By Albany Team

The Pan-Ams defended their good reputation in admirable style although they lost to the Albany All-Stars, 7-5, at Pan-Am Park, on the Saugerties road, Sunday afternoon. The fact that Clyde Russell, former Colonial hurler, was on the mound for the Albanians took no starch out of the oilmen's confidence and they had him worried considerably until the termination of the game. A rally in the ninth proved too late for the Pan-Ams to tie their opponents. In this frame the oilmen crossed the home plate twice and had runners on the bags when the third out was made.

Russell, who had pitched but one game this season before the Sunday tilt, was somewhat off on his control. He walked five men and lacked the ability to whip his fast ball across the rubber. The Pan-Ams nicked him for twelve safeties.

Carpenters did the hurling for the Pan-Ams and the All-Stars started to make meat of his slants in the opening session. A base on balls to O'Conner and hits by Singheimer, Welch and Wilson netted the All-Stars two tallies. Carpenter then settled down and held his own until the eighth.

The Pan-Ams evened matters in the second inning. Lay and Wood registered singles. Tierney got a free trip to first and Carpenter got a base hit.

Albany came through with one run in the fifth. The Pan-Ams managed to get one man across the plate in the sixth. Welch, the All-Stars' catcher, whipped a wild one to first in an effort to catch a runner, and Tierney, who was on second at the time, reached home when the pill went through the first baseman.

CLERMONTS SCORE VICTORY OVER RED SOX AGGREGATION.

The Clermonts defeated the Red Sox, 11-9, at Hasbrouck Park Sunday afternoon. The Sox played a good game and the Clermonts had to use three hurlers in order to stem the strong attack they made. Dunn, Marabella and Mathela, in the order named, did the twirling for the winners. Sipsa and Carpino formed the battery of the Red Sox.

The Clermonts will meet the Central Hudson team of the Industrial League at Hasbrouck Park this evening. Wednesday the Columbia nine, also of the Industrial League, will oppose the Clermonts.

Fleischmanns Lose to Blue Sox

The Blue Sox put another victory under their belts by scoring a 4-2 win over the Fleischmanns team at that community on Sunday afternoon. Captain Wojcio of the Blue Sox put the Kingston team on the winning side by sending out a double.

The Fleischmanns team found Huber for three runs in the first inning. The Blue Sox hurler, who had eight strikeouts to his credit and allowed but seven hits during the game, then settled down and held the opposing batsmen scoreless.

R. Williams, L. Tiano and S. Wojcio registered the neatest hits of the day. The first run of the game for the Blue Sox came in the fourth inning on a beautiful double to center field and a walk by Leskie, then an infield out and a double steal resulted in the tally.

In the ninth with score 3-1 against them and two men out the Sox hopes were brightened when Gill cracked out a double. Steinhilber singled to score Gill. After the second run had been registered Tomaseski doubled and his blow tied the contest. Wojcio stepped to the plate and bounced out a neat double to center field, which scored the winning run.

The Fleischmanns made a strong bid to take the game in the ninth inning but their efforts were in vain. S. Wojcio took the mound after Huber had been injured. After one out Terray sent a double to right field but the blow netted nothing for Tiano nabbed the pill, making a beautiful one-hand catch between right field and center. The next man up hit to Steinhilber, who threw him out at first, ending the inning.

Tout Elder as Olympic Hope

IF NOTRE DAME ever had an Olympic candidate, he is Jack Elder, the flying Frosh on track as well as on the gridiron. The Irish cinder ace and one of the most promising backs on Coach Rockne's eleven strengthened his claim to represent America in the sprints at the international gathering next July when he demonstrated by his recent flashy finishes that he is as good a sprinter in the open air as he is indoors. And, as an indoor sprinter, Elder has no superior.

When Jack Elder won the sixty-yard dash for the first time this season against Northwestern to tie the world indoor record of :06.2, some of the sport fans judged him a "dash in the pan," an athlete who would stay in the foreground overnight only. But the Irish star showed heels to all his competitors finishing in the front in every meet in which he ran.

Jack Elder.

During the indoor season Jack equaled the world mark for the sixty-yard route six times, four times in meets and twice in practice. He holds the unique distinction of covering the distance twice in the same day, when, at the Central Intercollegiate meet held at Notre Dame, he finished the semi-finals and the finals in :06.2 time. Elder is the first man to equal the time of :07.4 for the seventy-five-yard length established by H. A. Russell of Cornell in 1926, who ran the distance in equal time indoors and outdoors. This record is recognized as a national collegiate mark. The Irish star turned in his stellar performance at the Illinois relays, getting to the tape first ahead of such a field as Grady of Kansas, champion of the Missouri valley; Bracey of Rice Institute and Simpson of Ohio U.

Jack ran his greatest race in the 100-length at Drake, when, bucking a stiff wind, he negotiated the distance in 10 seconds flat to finish four feet ahead of Hester of Michigan. In the preliminaries he breasted the tape in :09.8. Under similar running conditions, with a strong wind facing him, the Kentucky thoroughbred took the century event at the Kansas relays in the same time.

Publicity of Figures in Player Sale Is Harmful

Robert Quinn, president of the Boston Red Sox, is taking the lead in suppressing overemphasis on player values. He steadfastly refuses to name the terms, whenever such terms are cash, whereby he acquires or sells a player. With Quinn it has become a matter of policy.

When Quinn announced the purchase of Ken Williams from the St. Louis Browns he was besought on all sides for the details. There he gave freely until pressed for the amount of cash involved. There he balked.

"I never tell how much a player costs me," he explained. "It doesn't do the club any good and it certainly doesn't do the player any good."

Wilbert Robinson, president-manager of the Brooklyn club, happened to come along just as Quinn made his observation and agreed.

"Me, too," he said. "That ought to be written into the rules of the major leagues. A lot of harm has been done by releasing those outlandish figures, which, even if they were true, were all out of proportion and placed false value on players."

It is the shortest cut, in opinion of many experienced baseball men, to the end of the mad "money moon" that is generally supposed to have undermined the caliber of playing material.

John McGraw Was First Holdout Known to Game

John J. McGraw has confessed he was the first "holdout" known to baseball. There has been many a one since and McGraw has had to battle with several famous members of the Giants, but this first exploit of his gave the biggest monetary return, comparatively speaking, than any of the later and more advertised cases.

"I pitched a game for East Homer one Sunday, back in 1889," said McGraw. "I walked from Olean to East Homer and back, and they gave me $2 for winning a good game of ball. I wish some of my pitchers today would put as much into a game as I put into that one. And I walked back and forth—didn't get home till after dark.

"The next week they came after me again. But I held out. I said my price was no $2 bill, but $5 and a carriage ride from Olean to West Homes and return. And I got it. And we won again."

Rondouts Beat Schenectady Team

With "Waco" Peters in rip-up hurling form the Rondout A. C. broke the winning streak of the Knights of St. John of Schenectady at Block Park Sunday afternoon. The Rondouts overcame the Knights to the tune of 5-3. It was the Saints' first defeat in nine games.

Peters let the Knights in on six blows, four of which were registered in the ninth inning. The quartet of hits allowed the visitors to score three runs in the frame, up until which the St. John's team had been held scoreless. After finding Peters for two blows in the opening stanza his opponents failed to hit until the ninth.

Niles's free trip to first, Krom's double and Leonard's single gave the Rondouts a two-run lead in the opening inning. Leonard was in hitting form and met the horsehide three times out of four tries.

Joey Hoffman, who has again donned a Rondout uniform, did a Babe Ruth in the sixth, which scored Peters, who was on first and gave the locals two runs.

Yonkers Kaseys Down Centrals

Led by Bob Sickler, who nicked Cy Barker for three blows out of four tries, the Centrals corralled 13 blows to seven for Yonkers, registered off the delivery of Dewey Van Buren, when the Centrals lost to the Yonkers K. of C. nine at that place Sunday, 7-5.

The lineup of the Centrals underwent several changes for the Yonkers game. Robins, Schwab, Hoffman and Black did not go down the river with the locals. Hank Cragan held down first sack, while Ryder played behind the bat.

The Centrals were held in the goose-egg column until the sixth stanza. In this game Davitt and Merritt got a free pass to first from Barker, who was found by Sickler for the third time during the game. Cragan singled and Glaser hit one which was good for two sacks. After Moore bounced the pill with the willow, Barker shut down until the ninth when one run was registered through the Moore, Ryder, Davitt combination.

The Middletown-Kingston DUSO League contest, postponed on account of rain Saturday, will be played at the Fair Grounds this afternoon. The tilt will decide whether or not Kingston will be awarded the league trophy without playing again this season. If Middletown wins the game, a play-off will be necessary for a victory will tie the Middies with the high school varsity.

TIGERS SECURE "FIND" OF YEAR

Paul Easterling Has Made Remarkable Rise in Game.

A burly, broad-shouldered youngster from Georgia, with a stick of dynamite for a bat, may restore his native state's ancient halo of baseball fame if Paul Easterling, twenty-three-year-old recruit outfielder of the Detroit Tigers, continues to smack the horsehide at his present explosive speed.

Not since Ty Cobb first burst upon the big leagues as the Georgia peach in that same Tiger outfield has a ball player given the Georgia fans so much to cheer about.

Young Easterling's dramatic rise to stardom forms one of the most absorbing romances baseball has developed. A little more than a year ago he was riding plunging field artillery steeds and drawing down $42 a month from Uncle Sam as a regular army corporal at Fort Lewis, near Tacoma, Wash.

Today the ex-artilleryman's a certain fixture in the big show at $800 a month. He is said to drive a baseball farther than any man in the American league except Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig, the Yankees' mastodonic mashers, both of whom outweigh him by many pounds.

When Easterling reported to the Detroit training camp in Texas this spring, he was, in Manager Moriarity's eyes, just another busher trying to get along. But he promptly proved himself that blue diamond of the baseball world—a born hitter to whom all pitching, minor and major league, looks alike.

His conquest of fame was assured when he hammered out home runs in each of his first three games in the American league. The first smash was the longest four-bagger ever hit at the St. Louis park. Then he went on to lead the league with the dizzy average of .523.

A native Georgian, Easterling as a youngster cherished no hopes of some day chasing flies in that Detroit outfield which Tyrus Raymond Cobb, idol of the state, then graced with such distinction.

Instead, his one ambition was to become a soldier. He did so, too—enlisting a matter of hours after he reached the minimum age of eighteen on September 14, 1923.

Easterling's baseball career dates from a certain afternoon when Capt. Clarence F. Murray, Lewis coach, saw him fooling around on the fort diamond with some fellow "redlegs" from his own battery. As the officer watched, Easterling banged the ball a healthy clout.

"There's a coming star."

The captain had called the turn. The eighteen-year-old lad who had never played on a regular team developed amazingly under the officer's tutelage. Soon, because of his terrific bombarding of the best slants the soldier-twirlers could produce, he was being called the "Gunner."

He became the army's "wonder hitter," in 1924, driving out 14 home runs in 22 games for an average of .422, and the following year knocking 22 homers in 84 games and averaging .419.

Like Babe Ruth, who twirled big league ball before turning swat specialist, Easterling's talents are varied on the ball field. In the deciding game for the service championship of the Northwest the opposition filled the bags in the last of the ninth. There was but one out and the score was tied.

Into this dramatic situation strode the Gunner. Stepping into the box he fanned the batter, then dished up three strikes to the next man, retiring the side.

Not content, he tore into the first ball pitched and drove it out of the lot. That clout gave the pennant to the Lewis nine and it also brought several tempting professional offers to Easterling himself.

Upon his discharge from the army in September, 1926, Easterling was signed by Seattle of the Pacific Coast league and farmed out for seasoning to Bloomington of the Three-Eye league. During the 1927 race Seattle recalled the ex-regular army fence buster and Detroit grabbed him when the season ended.

Cohen's War Cry

Back in the not-so-long-ago days when Dave Bancroft was captain of the Giants, he would penetrate the air with "Beauty" whenever one of the New York pitchers threw a strike over the plate. Now when a Giant twirler busses a strike over or one of the other players bobs up with a play out of the ordinary Andy Cohen gives the famous cowboy cry of "Whoop-ee!"

Horsepower

James Watt and Matthew Boulton, in the Eighteenth century, began to manufacture hoisting engines to supplant the horses then used in the coal mines of England. They tested the pulling power of a heavy draft horse and found that a horse could lift 220 pounds of coal 100 feet in 1 minute, which is equivalent to lifting 33,000 pounds 1 foot in 1 minute, the accepted test of horsepower today.

Milton's Great Work "Cluttered Up Shop"

Little Britain, near Smithfield, London, owes its name to the fact that the duke of Bretagne, the province of France we now call Brittany, had there a magnificent palace.

In Stuart times it was famous for its second-hand bookshops, and it was while browsing amongst them that the earl of Dorset lighted upon several copies of an unknown work entitled "Paradise Lost," which the bookseller implored him to help dispose of, "as there was no sale for them, and they cluttered up his shop."

The earl bought a copy and was so struck with some of the passages that he sent it to Dryden, who returned it with the memorable opinion: "This man Milton cuts us all out, and the ancients, too."

Making of an Artist

Theodore Thomas had a boundless contempt for the musicians who went about seeking to advertise their calling in their dress and neckties. Once a nice young man with luxuriant locks, a long flowing tie and other insignia of the tribe artistic joined the orchestra. He was entirely ignorant of Mr. Thomas' pet aversion.

During his first rehearsal Thomas eyed the hirsute youth with manifest disfavor, and at the end motioned him aside. The famous conductor, with his arms akimbo, stood and gazed sardonically at the waving field of hair. Then he laid a finger on the young man's arm and said with no unkind accent:

"Practice, practice—not pomade—makes the artist."

The young man went out and asked the way to a barber's shop.—Kansas City Times.

LAST NIGHT on the RADIO

Reception all day and evening Sunday was perfect, with the exception of an outbreak of local disturbances between 9 and 10 o'clock in the evening when the snarls and rattles greatly impaired the Atwater Kent program. DX reception was conspicuous by its absence.

"Scrappy" Lambert and "Billy" Hillpot, the two Rutgers College vocalists who achieved recognition over the radio circuit when they sang with Ben Bernie and his Roosevelt Grill Orchestra, and then leaped into national fame as the Smith Brothers, "Trade" and "Mark," have retired their whiskers and are now being heard every Monday night in the Fisk "Time-To-Re-Tire" program. This program comes over WEAF, WGY and affiliated stations.

William Simmons, baritone, will broadcast the concert in the Atwater Kent Hour, Sunday night, June 17, singing many songs that have been best sellers in their day.

Earth's Big Bulge

As the earth's crust is by no means rigid it rises and falls under the gravitational attraction of the moon and sun in a manner similar to that of the ocean's tide. Various difficulties have so far prevented exact measurements.

The pressure exerted on spots of the earth's crust by the rising tide of the ocean is another thing that makes it heave and fall. Atlantic tides have caused an observed earth bulge eight hundred miles away, and it is thought probable that this influence girdles the world.

Pencil Sharpening

A drawing master states that he is often able to judge the characteristics of his pupils by their manner of sharpening a pencil. The artistic individual usually makes a fine tapering point, the business-like person a short, stubby one. Those who sharpen a pencil towards themselves on a thumb are often secretive. The untidy person reduces his pencil-end to shapeless irregularity, while the very happy-go-lucky one hacks away in careless fashion and finishes with about half the length he started with.

Financial and Commercial

New York, June 11 (AP).—Increased resistance to selling pressure developed in today's stock market. Extreme declines of 2 to 10 points occurred in a number of high priced specialties, but sharp rebounds developed in several cases and about a score issues, led by Radio, showed independent strength. Numerically, losses again exceeded gains. Trading showed a further falling off in volume, total sales in the first three hours running well below 2,000,000 shares.

The unexpectedly large decline in the unfilled orders of the United States Steel Corporation last month, made public after the close of the market Saturday, and the announcement, furnished speculators for the decline plenty of ammunition in their campaign for lower prices. However, the severity of last week's reaction, coupled with the expansion in the short interest, led to expectations of at least a technical rally in many stocks.

Credit conditions showed little change. Call loans renewed at 5½ per cent and a slightly easier undertone was apparent in the time money market. The heavy over-subscription of the recent government financing was widely regarded as a hopeful sign, although the coupon rate of 3⅞ and 4 per cent compares with 3⅛ in March and 3⅛ last November. Political uncertainties continued to have a bearish effect on speculative sentiment.

Among the various industrial groups coppers showed the best recuperative power. Public Utilities yielded most readily to selling pressure.

Radio ran up 7 points to 201 and then dipped below 200 on realizing. Baldwin broke 10 points to a new 1928 low at 225 and snapped back to 244. Delaware & Hudson climbed 4½ points, but most of the other rails were heavy, Southern Railway, Union Pacific and Lackawanna losing 2 points or more.

Greene Cananca, with a 3-point gain, led the rally in coppers. International Telephone, Abitibi Power, Western Union, Brooklyn Edison, Detroit and American Telephone each last 2 points or more.

Among the many issues to sink into new low ground for the year were American Hide & Leather preferred, American Seating, Dodge Bros. "A", Great Northern Ore and Kansas City Southern common.

Red Indians as Swimmers

The bureau of American ethnology says that the Indians are remarkable swimmers, and some of the tribes were in the water as much as were the primitive Polynesians. They swam six or seven different ways, including treading water, and would dive to the bottom of deep water. A common institution among the Indians was the sweat bath. They would sweat in a specially constructed sweathouse, which was closed up to keep the heat in, and when they thought they had sweated enough would suddenly run outdoors, giving warwhoops, throw themselves into the cold water, and, after a while, re-enter the sweathouse to dry off, since they had no towels.

Putting Off

Nothing is hard when you do it. At least it is rarely as hard as you think it will be. Procrastination throws a heavy shadow—a shadow which shuts out the light and makes every prospect gloomy. Tasks put off come back multiplied. Realizing that life is "one thing after another" and proceeding on that basis to get the thing done, quickly clears up the shadows.—Grove Patterson, in the Mobile Register.

Coolidge Trip May Be Postponed

Washington, June 11 (AP).—The possibility that President and Mrs. Coolidge's trip to Wisconsin for the summer, scheduled tonight, might have to be postponed, was seen in recurrence today of Mrs. Coolidge's indisposition which kept her confined to her bed for some time several months ago.

Colonel James F. Coupal and Lieutenant Commander Joel T. Boone, White House physicians, were in consultation this afternoon as to whether the trip should be undertaken. A decision will be reached later in the day.

Slang's Life Uncertain

Slang is a vigorous outlaw language. It is constantly furnishing words that for the moment are in one way or another expressive, often humorous. Some of these words, though heard frequently today, will be dead before another twelvemonth, others within a generation may be in good use.

She is being sued for $800 by her sister, Grace Moore Shaw, on a loan. The plaintiff charges that on a cross country trip for a swim Lottie "suddenly became the lady," saying such things as fresh cut flowers in her train drawing room "went with her high station as a swimmer."

Save Ulster County Cherries

Ulster County Farm Bureau Spray Information Service to Notify Growers When to Spray Trees in Order to Save Fruit.

Within the last few years serious losses have resulted from "wormy" cherries throughout the Hudson valley. Most growers are beginning to realize the importance of the cherry fruit-flies, whose maggots sometimes infest from one-fourth to two-thirds of the ripening fruits.

During 1927 a large percentage of cherry growers intended to sell their sour cherries for "cold pack" and were desirous of meeting the requirements of the buyers. Practically all of the cherries were accepted except in a few cases where unsprayed lots came in. These were rejected because the per cent of maggoty fruit was above the tolerance allowed, which is two maggots per No. 10 tin can, containing about 150 cherries.

Habits of Fruit-flies.

Unfortunately, there is little external evidence of the work of these fruit-flies in cherries at picking time. The infested cherries do not drop, but finally a rotting and sinking in of a portion of the fruit results from the work of the maggots. When full grown they leave the cherries, go into the ground about an inch and change to brownish puparia. It is in this stage that they pass the winter. The adult fruit-flies begin to emerge in late May or during the first two weeks in June and may be found on the trees for several weeks after.

One species of flies appears in early June, but do not begin egg-laying until about two weeks later. During this period they may be seen resting on the foliage and lapping up drops of moisture. Eggs are laid by the flies through the skin of the ripening cherries, and the maggots hatch in a few days, feed on the juice flesh for three or four weeks, soon forming a rotting cavity near the pit.

Timing Applications.

In timing sprays for control of cherry maggots emergence cages are constructed and placed under trees that were heavily infested last year to learn the exact time the flies make their appearance. Warnings are sent out when the emergence of the flies reaches a peak. One spray or dust is not sufficient to give satisfactory control. Some growers of English Morello cherries had an infestation of 50 per cent where the second spray was omitted last year.

Two Species of Flies.

There are two distinct species of cherry fruit-flies, both attacking many varieties of cherries, whether sweet or sour, early or late. The Morello, Montmorency and Early Richmond are varieties often the worst infested.

Benefit to Growers.

Too much emphasis can not be placed on the control of this pest. If the grower expects to market his crop and receive good prices for his fruit it is absolutely necessary that applications be made at the proper time. When maggot infested fruit goes to market the grower not only hurts his own reputation but he loses the confidence of the buyer, who has to stand the loss. The "Coldpack" firms up-state will be anxious to obtain cherries gorwn here in the valley, if there is a shortage in western New York. Conditions at present indicate that the crop in several counties will fall short of the average production. There is also an increasing demand of cherries, for this purpose, in the valley.

Farm Bureau Will Help.

The Farm Bureau Spray Information Service will notify all cooperators and Farm Bureau members when to make the first maggot spray. Do not fail to apply the second application when you get the warning to do so. Many growers put on three dust applications of 90-10 sulfur-lead arsenate instead of two sprays using 2½ gallons of lime-sulfur, 2½ pounds powdered arsenate of lead and water to make 100 gallons. Either of the two combinations should give good control if they are properly applied.

For further information in regard to the cherry maggot or any other fruit pest call the Farm Bureau Branch Office, at Highland 16-F-2 between the hours of 6:30 and 7:30, daylight saving time.

WOODSTOCK PASTOR TENDERED A SURPRISE

One feature of the entertainment was the taking of motion pictures of the guests at their games by Gustave C. C. Schrader. These pictures will later be shown in the basement of the Woodstock Reformed Church. Refreshments were served, and the evening was spent in jolly games. Poultrymen Form New Association

Plan for Supervised Grade Presented and Received With Much Enthusiasm by the Poultrymen.

On Saturday about forty of the leading poultrymen from this section of the state gathered at the court house in Kingston to discuss plans for a new, intermediate grade of poultry.

The plan as worked out calls for a "supervised" classification which will come between the ordinary paid culling and certified grades as now used. It will be officially recognized by the New York State Certification Association and will be known as "supervised breeders." The standards will be such that any better than average poultryman can qualify.

In the past there has been a serious need for more sources of officially recognized chicks, known to come up to a certain standard, still being obtainable at a reasonable price. Many inferior chicks have been brought in from out of the state, which have caused serious losses to poultrymen.

The new plan will establish an official grade of breeders, carrying with it careful selection. It will at once benefit the purchaser and seller of chicks.

The plan will be put in operation through the various county Farm Bureaus in the state, with the State Certification Association. For further information consult Albert Kurdt, manager of the Ulster County Farm Bureau. The office is at 74 John street and the 'phone number is 1680. Applications are also handled through this office.

Modern Egypt

Freight Barges on the Nile.

(Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)

EGYPT, in a dispute with England, has been once more at the focus of world attention, as she has been many times in the sixty centuries that make up most of known history.

Americans who visit Egypt know the country chiefly from the city standpoint. They see through the eyes of the extremely polite dragoman who escorts them about the streets of Cairo or Alexandria. The man who sweats in the sun on his tiny farm is an entirely different creature. His scale of living is of the meanest.

The peasant population huddle in villages within the confines of four mud walls, homes which literally do not furnish them with a roof over their heads—wretched cabins improvised out of Nile mud, windowless as well as roofless. No modern pots and pans, none of the contrivances and shifts of modern times that go toward rendering life easy and comfortable, and which enable the foreman of a section gang on an American railroad to be better warmed, lighted, and served with news than was Queen Elizabeth of England.

We are accustomed to think of Egypt in terms of symbols—the Sphinx, Osiris, the Pyramids. The country has been a happy hunting ground for the archeologists, and their revelations turn us back through the abysms of time to the contemplation of mysterious figures of the past, whether a sacred bull or King Tutankhamen.

A country of wonders, no doubt; but the wonder of wonders is not the ancient relics dug from the earth, nor the mighty works of men's hands erected upon its surface, but the soil itself—that longish strip of green fringing the River Nile for the better part of one thousand miles.

Nature has dealt in niggardly fashion with the land of Egypt. The country possesses no copper, no iron ore, no forests, no precious minerals, and no good steam coal. It is fairly exact to remark that the country lacks all the prime prerequisites of modern industrialism. Agriculture is virtually the sole source of national wealth. But even in this field the country is extremely limited.

Only a Strip of Habitable Land.

Egypt is practically rainless and only one-twenty-fifth of the land is capable of cultivation. These fertile regions are sandwiched in between the Arabian and Libyan deserts. While the area of Egypt, not including the Sudan, is 350,000 square miles, or about eight times the size of the state of Pennsylvania, only a little more than 12,000 square miles are capable of cultivation.

Over this relatively small strip of habitable land the population swarms some 3,100 to the square mile, whereas the population of Belgium, the densest in Europe, is 652 to the square mile. Yet, despite all this, Egypt is probably the most perfect and extensive farming laboratory that the world has yet seen.

From an agricultural standpoint, the country presents a spectacle of three uniformities—climate, soil, moisture. Except for the region near the north coast, the country is rainless and frosts are unknown. The soil is the same, formed by the sediment from Nile water.

Now, uniformity is precisely the thing which the American farmer lacks. The main factor in crop yields is the weather, and the weather is always the unknown quantity. The Egyptian solves his farming equation by knowing the value of it before he starts.

With the American farmer, agriculture is more or less of a gamble with nature, whereas the Egyptian farmer bets on a certainty. Farming, therefore, in Egypt comes nearer to being an exact science than in any other important country in the world.

Where Man Surpassed Nature.

In ordinary speech, there is always a tendency to personify nature, to observe that nature does this or that or works according to some well-ordered plan or design. While the thought is not exact, we can with some measure of truth speak of nature's intentions about this planet and the life which flourishes upon its surface. For example, we may observe with truth that nature never intended Egypt, a comparatively sterile and drought-beset country, to support from its soil its present population of nearly 14,000,000 people.

The ingenuity of man, however, has contrived by art to supplement the gifts of nature. Nature ordained that the Nile should overflow once a year and flood the agricultural plains of its valley, bestowing at once the twin gifts of moisture and fertility. When the flood has passed and the water has subsided, the farmer sows his seed and grows his annual crop. Traditionally and historically, it is either a feast or a famine in Egypt. For a brief season the abounding flood, to be succeeded for the balance of the year by blazing suns and killing droughts.

The ingenuity of man has harnessed the great river by holding back the flood of waters during the freshet season and doling out these husbanded supplies during the lean months of the year. Through this device, streams of living water can be carried every month of the year to the roots of growing plants.

The great stone dam at Aswan is in reality the keystone of modern Egypt. This huge rampart of masonry, which retains a 90 foot head of water, weighing 2,340,000 tons, is pierced at its foot by 180 sluice-gates. These gates, kept wide open when the annual flood is coming down, late in the summer, are gradually closed when the crest of the flood has passed. By January the reservoir is full and remains so during February and March.

When the supply of water begins to fail, in the late spring and early summer, sluices are opened and stored water added to the normal discharge.

Great barrages are thrown across the Nile farther downstream. These are masonry obstacles laid across the river's course to raise the water in the stream to the level of the irrigation canals. The Nile barrage, a few miles below Cairo, is capable of raising the water level for the irrigation of the entire delta by as much as 20 feet.

Crops Require Lots of Water.

Perennial irrigation, as has been explained, means an all-year supply of water to the Egyptian farmer. The huge volume of water required for irrigating the porous soils of the delta under the blazing semitropical sun may be put at about 30 tons per acre per day as a minimum. Cotton-growing requires about 25 tons of water daily, while rice culture requires 60 tons.

Man and his works in Egypt have existed only by grace of the river. There has always been something mysterious about the annual rise of the Nile. Such a seemingly slight thing as a reversal of the winds that sweep in summer across equatorial Africa from the Atlantic would cut off the annual flood and lay waste the richest agricultural valley in the world.

But while the annual floods have varied from time to time in volume they have never in recorded history been entirely cut off. The apparition of the annual rise of the Nile is one of nature's certitudes, as well established and as universally accepted as the rising and setting of the sun.

The ancient Egyptians were continually casting about for an explanation of the annual flood, but they never succeeded in penetrating to the heart of the mystery. There is no longer the slightest mystery about a subject that baffled the intelligence of the ancient world. The White and the Blue Nile, meeting at Khartum form the great River Nile. The sources of the Nile are, therefore, dual—the one constant, the other variable.

The White Nile finds a catchment basin in a series of lakes, of which the greatest is Victoria, in equatorial Africa. This lake is some 2,500 miles by river from where the great stream debouches into the Mediterranean. The supply of water from the White Nile is fairly constant and is sufficient to furnish the River Nile with approximately the volume of water registered at mean low ebb.

From time immemorial, however, the prosperity of the country has depended upon the swollen flood that overflows the banks of the river and for weeks inundates the surrounding region. This blessed overflow is the result of other Nile sources, which are something of a variable.

The Blue Nile and the River Atbara find their catchment basins in the highlands of Abyssinia. Late in the summer this region is drenched with torrential rains, caused by the mountain interception of equatorial winds which draw across the heart of Africa from the Atlantic. Then the Blue Nile and the Atbara rise some 25 to 30 feet above their ordinary levels, and some weeks later these freshet waters appear in Egypt as the annual inundation of the Nile.

This so-called "red water" from the Abyssinian highlands not only supplies moisture, but also fertility to the soils of agricultural Egypt.

Fear of what people might say runs conscience a close second for making cowards of us all.
